

NETGEAR AND KWILT PARTNER TO GIVE USERS INSTANT ACCESS TO HOME PHOTOS ON MOBILE DEVICES

LAS VEGAS, NV, January 7, 2016 – Kwilt, the makers of KwiltKeys, today announced it has partnered with NETGEAR (NASDAQ: NTGR), the world's leading manufacturer of home networking equipment, to give users instant access to home photos through the Kwilt photo roll app and the KwiltKeys universal photo keyboard app.

The new partnership marks Kwilt's first foray into the connected-home space and will give users unlimited access to secure, home-based photo collections anytime, from anywhere.

Beyond universal access to all personal photo sources such as Facebook, Instagram, Flickr, Google Photos, Microsoft OneDrive and iDevices to name a few, Kwilt now offers seamlessly integrated and real time remote access to home-based photo collections stored on USB drives connected to a Netgear Nighthawk R7000 router. This latest photo collection addition allows consumers to store and access their precious images in a safe and secure home environment while enjoying the benefits of private cloud photos access at no extra cost.

"We pioneered the ability to instantly access and share personal photos in one easy step no matter where they are," said Marc-Antoine Benglia, Founder and CEO of Kwilt, "We are now expanding the Kwilt photos ecosystem with our NETGEAR partnership to offer consumers access to their connected-home photos in a simple, secure and seamless way."

"We are thrilled to partner with Kwilt on this unique and very innovative twist on the personal cloud concept for personal photos" said Sandeep Harpalani of Netgear. "Our routers are the perfect connected-home device to serve all your treasured memories securely and reliably to your mobile wherever you are and at absolutely zero storage cost!"

KwiltKeys will easily pair with upcoming NETGEAR routers to ensure a safe, stress-free photo experience for users. This partnership marks the debut of "Kwilt-Ready" devices that will be compatible with KwiltKeys. Compatible NETGEAR router models will be announced shortly as they are made available to consumers worldwide.

The partnership with NETGEAR directly follows the announcement of Kwilt's launch of its development platform ecosystem last month.
